With attractive pricing, Sharma expects that the Okhi-90 model would help the company gain volume and take on the rival companies faster.

The new model is equipped with a host of features, including in-built navigation, digital speedometer, Bluetooth connectivity, mobile charging USB-port, geo-fencing, secure parking, among others.

Okinawa is currently selling its five models through 452 dealerships in as many cities which include seven experiential centres called Galaxy. We hope to add over 150 more by the next year, Sharma added.

The company has exhausted its 90,000 units per annum plant at Bhiwandi in Rajasthan and is on course to commission its second 3 lakh units plant shortly.
